This is Afterschool in South Carolina

Support for afterschool is overwhelming and demand is growing. Nationwide, 9 in 10 adults say afterschool programs are important to their community—and more than 19 million kids are waiting to get in. Decades of research prove afterschool helps kids attend school more often, get better grades, and build foundational skills, like communication, teamwork, and problem solving.

School-age kids spend 80 percent of their waking hours outside of school. Afterschool and summer learning programs provide transformative learning experiences in unique settings that help young people discover what they love to do and reach their full potential.

Supporting South Carolina’s Students

A 2018 evaluation of South Carolina’s 21st CCLC programs by the American Institutes for Research found that based on teacher surveys, among students regularly attending the programs and in need of improvement, 81% improved their academic performance, and approximately 60% of students who needed to improve their math and English language arts grades saw gains. Among regular attendees who were chronically absent the previous year, 2 in 3 improved their school-day attendance.

Among South Carolina parents:

- 68% agree that afterschool programs help their kids get excited about learning.
- 59% report that their kids have learning opportunities in science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) in their afterschool program and 67% agree afterschool programs can help kids gain STEM-related interests and skills.
- 73% agree afterschool programs help kids gain teamwork, leadership, and critical thinking skills.

21st Century Community Learning Center grants are the only dedicated federal funding source that support local communities’ afterschool and summer programs. Demand for programs is so great that 1 out of every 4 applications cannot be funded.
21st Century Community Learning Centers

In South Carolina, 21st Century Community Learning Centers serve 14,641 kids in 186 communities. Community Learning Centers bring together diverse partners to meet community needs. A typical program receives $67,000 from partners to supplement its federal funding. Nationwide, partner contributions totaled more than $1 billion between 2006 and 2010.

Nationally, children attend programs in:
- Public school districts: 7,892
- Community-based organizations: 959
- Charter schools: 386
- Faith-based organizations: 115

In a nationwide study of students who regularly attend a Community Learning Center, teachers report that:
- 1 in 2 improved their math and Language Arts grades
- More than 2 in 3 improved their homework completion and class participation
- 3 in 5 improved their behavior in class

Supporting South Carolina’s Families

Families across America report that the gap between work and school schedules can be up to 25 hours per week. Parents lose 8 days of work, and businesses lose up to $300 billion a year due to parental concerns about afterschool care.

Among South Carolina parents:
- 77% say afterschool programs give them peace of mind.
- 73% agree afterschool programs help them keep their jobs. 73% believe afterschool reduces the likelihood that kids will engage in risky behaviors.
- 82% support public funding for afterschool programs.

Afterschool provides a solid return on investment. Research spanning several states shows that every $1 invested in afterschool programs saves at least $3 by:

1. Increasing kids’ earning potential
2. Improving kids’ performance at school
3. Reducing crime and juvenile delinquency

“Caring staff who serve as mentors, leadership development opportunities, and future planning are just a few of the benefits I have been able to experience. None of these things would have been possible for me if not for my afterschool program. My afterschool experience has been nothing short of transformational. It has helped me stay on track to graduate and also helped me to realize what my future can look like.”
