

Uncertain Times 2009 - Georgia: Recession Imperiling Georgia Afterschool Programs and the Children They Serve

What has been the effect of a faltering economy, state and local budget cuts and stagnant funding on afterschool programs and the youth and families that they serve? The Afterschool Alliance's new national survey of afterschool providers, Uncertain Times 2009, offers answers.

From April 9, 2009 to May 7, 2009 the Afterschool Alliance surveyed afterschool programs on how the economy is affecting their programs and communities. 1,447 programs responded to the survey, representing 8,587 afterschool sites serving more than 1.2 million children. 147 Georgia programs responded to the survey. 41 percent of Georgia respondents are in urban communities, 36 percent are in rural communities and 35 percent are in suburban communities.

Overall, Georgia program leaders report that they are serving a high need population, struggling to maintain their funding and are worried about how the recession will affect future funding. Nearly all respondents to this web-based survey say that more children in their communities could benefit from afterschool programs, if programs were available.

Key Findings for Georgia:

- Afterschool programs are serving a high need population. On average, 76 percent of kids qualify for free/reduced price lunch, 13 percent are Limited English Proficient (LEP) and 9 percent have special needs/disabilities.
- 98 percent of program leaders report the recession is affecting their community, and 78 percent say it is "very much" affecting their community.
- Unemployment, failing/shrinking businesses, high food prices and loss of major employers/industries are the top ways in which communities are affected by the recession.
- About 7 in 10 programs report a loss in funding due to the recession. 22 percent report a significant loss that will cause cutbacks to the program or cause one or more sites to close.
- 6 in 10 program leaders (62 percent) report their budget is inadequate to meet the needs of students and families.
- 76 percent report that funding is down from 2 years ago.
- 9 in 10 programs (92 percent) expect the recession to impact their programs in the 2009-2010 school year. Almost half of programs (47 percent) expect the recession to "very much" affect their program.

AFTERSCHOOL FOR ALL

- 81 percent report that funding is less than secure for the next 1 to 2 years and 87 percent report funding is not fully secure for next 3 to 5 years.
- 93 percent say more kids need afterschool in their community.
- 89 percent of respondents offer summer programs and 45 percent expect enrollment to be higher in summer 2009.
- 45 percent of programs say they would need to at least double capacity to serve all the kids in their community who need afterschool.
- Programs report that the top significant barriers to participation are fees and transportation.

In sum, Uncertain Times 2009 finds that –in Georgia and across the nation – many afterschool programs, and therefore many kids and families, are feeling the effects of the recession and expect that to worsen next year.

Methodology: Uncertain Times 2009 used web-based survey software. The Afterschool Alliance emailed a link to the survey to more than 10,000 contacts in its database in April 2009. Recipients were encouraged to forward the survey to afterschool program staff, and programs were asked to be certain that only one person per program completed the survey and to provide responses from a site-level coordinator when possible. Nationally, 1,834 responses were reviewed. 387 of them did not provide sufficient data to be included in the final analysis or were duplicate responses. Therefore, the final national sample was 1,447 responses which represent approximately 8,587 afterschool sites serving more than 1.2 million children. (Many respondents are responsible for multiple sites.)
