Urge Congress to Reject Proposed Funding Cut*

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The Afterschool Alliance today honored Columbia Mayor Bob Coble for his support for afterschool programs at the “Breakfast of Champions,” a gala event in Washington, D.C. Mayor Coble was one of 16 individuals and four organizations honored for their tireless work on behalf of afterschool programs. He was nominated by the South Carolina Afterschool Alliance.

Mayor Coble has been a staunch supporter of afterschool and extended day programs in Columbia, including KOBAN Columbia, an afterschool program for at-risk youth in the Columbia Housing Authority Complexes. He has also been involved in promoting afterschool programs as solutions to gang violence.

Mayor Coble worked with Richland County School District One to organize city-wide participation in the Afterschool Alliance’s national rally for afterschool, Lights On Afterschool, and last year proclaimed October 18th as Lights On Afterschool Day. He also worked with the City Manager of Columbia to provide financial support and serve as a major sponsor for the 2008 Lights On Afterschool Breakfast and Celebration.

Mayor Coble also supported efforts to develop quality afterschool childcare and summer camp options for families in the City of Columbia through the City of Columbia's Parks & Recreation afterschool and summer camp sites.

The “Breakfast of Champions” is part of the seventh annual Afterschool for All Challenge which brings together hundreds of parents, educators, children, program directors and advocates from around the country for a series of events and meetings with Members of Congress. The 2008 Challenge is co-sponsored by the National League of Cities and the Afterschool Alliance. Following the “Breakfast,” the advocates fanned out across Capitol Hill for meetings with their U.S. Senators and Representatives, and congressional staff.

“Parents, children and communities rely on afterschool programs to keep kids safe, inspire them to learn and help working families,” said Afterschool Alliance Executive Director Jodi Grant. “But federal funding isn’t keeping up with the demand for afterschool, and President Bush proposes to cut federal afterschool funding even further. We're in our nation's capital this week to honor afterschool champions and remind lawmakers that these cuts are short-sighted and counterproductive. All kids need the opportunities that afterschool programs provide. Bipartisan support in Congress defeated the last proposed cut to afterschool programs, and we are seeking bipartisan support again this year so we can counter the President's proposal and bring quality afterschool programs to all children who need them."

This year, President Bush proposed cutting the federal budget for afterschool programs by $281 million and converting the successful 21st Century Community Learning Centers afterschool initiative (21st CCLC) into a risky voucher system. If Congress agrees to his proposal, 300,000 students would lose access to afterschool programs.

Other state champions honored at the Afterschool for All Challenge are: Boise Mayor David Bieter; St. Paul Mayor Christopher Coleman; Kacy Conley, YMCA of Central Maryland in Baltimore; Omaha Mayor Mike Fahey; Grand Rapids Mayor George Heartwell; Savannah Mayor Otis Johnson; Morgantown Mayor Ron Justice; Charlotte City Council Member James Mitchell; Missouri State Representative Danie Moore; New York City Commissioner of the Department of Youth and Community Development Jeanne Mullgrav; San Francisco Mayor Gavin Newsom; Linda Robinson, Kentucky Department of Education; New Hampshire State Senator Kathleen Sgambati; Maxine Quintana, Denver Mayor's Office for Education and Children; and Pennsylvania State Representative Jake Wheatley.

The Afterschool Alliance and MetLife Foundation also presented the first-ever MetLife Afterschool Innovator Awards at the "Breakfast of Champions" to four organizations that have developed and implemented innovative afterschool practices. The awardees are profiled in Afterschool Innovations in Brief, a series of Issue Briefs developed by the Afterschool Alliance with funding from MetLife Foundation. They are: The After-School Corporation in New York; LA's BEST in California; The Native Youth Club in South Dakota; and Lincoln Community Learning Centers in Nebraska.
