LA's BEST Receives Afterschool Innovator Award

Parents, Educators, Students, City and State Leaders Urge Congress to Increase Afterschool Funding

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The Afterschool Alliance and MetLife Foundation today recognized LA's BEST in Los Angeles as an Afterschool Innovator for serving as a powerful resource for teacher recruitment in the City. LA's BEST is one of four organizations being honored at the "Breakfast of Champions" as an Afterschool Innovator. Each has been profiled in Afterschool Innovations in Brief, a series of Issue Briefs developed by the Afterschool Alliance with support from MetLife Foundation.

With 26,000 children in 168 elementary schools enrolled in its programs, LA's BEST is an important player in teacher recruitment efforts. More than one in four of its 1,800 field staff plan to become teachers, and a third are currently pursuing degrees in education and plan to teach.

LA's BEST actively encourages its students to consider teaching careers, with great success. Nearly one in ten staff members are former LA's BEST students. Each site also has two part-time high school positions and the experience of working with younger children often encourages high school students to consider careers in teaching.

The "Breakfast of Champions" is part of the seventh annual Afterschool for All Challenge which brings together hundreds of parents, educators, children, program directors and advocates from around the country for a series of events and meetings with members of Congress. The 2008 Challenge is co-sponsored by the National League of Cities and the Afterschool Alliance. Following the "Breakfast," advocates met with their U.S. Senators and Representatives and congressional aides.

"Parents, children and communities rely on afterschool programs to keep kids safe, inspire them to learn and help working families," said Afterschool Alliance Executive Director Jodi Grant. "But federal funding isn't keeping up with the demand for afterschool, and President Bush proposes to cut federal afterschool funding even further. We're in our nation's capital this week to honor afterschool champions and remind lawmakers that these cuts are short-sighted and counterproductive. All kids need the opportunities that afterschool programs provide. Bipartisan support in Congress defeated the last proposed cut to afterschool programs, and we are seeking bipartisan support again this year so we can counter the President's proposal and bring quality afterschool programs to all children who need them."

In February, President Bush proposed cutting the federal budget for afterschool programs by $281 million and converting the successful 21st Century Community Learning Centers afterschool initiative into a risky voucher system. If Congress agrees to his proposal, 300,000 students would lose access to afterschool programs.

The other organizations honored with MetLife Afterschool Innovator Awards are Lincoln Community Learning Centers in Nebraska, The After-School Corporation (TASC) in New York and the Native Youth Club in South Dakota.

At the “Breakfast of Champions,” the Alliance also honored 16 individuals as Afterschool Champions. They are: Boise Mayor David Bieter; Columbia (SC) Mayor Bob Coble; St. Paul Mayor Christopher Coleman; Kacy Conley, YMCA of Central Maryland in Baltimore; Omaha Mayor Mike Fahey; Grand Rapids Mayor George Heartwell; Savannah Mayor Otis Johnson; Morgantown (WV) Mayor Ron Justice; Charlotte City Council Member James Mitchell; Missouri State Representative Danie Moore; New York City Commissioner of the Department of Youth and Community Development Jeanne Mullgrav; San Francisco Mayor Gavin Newsom; Linda Robinson, Kentucky Department of Education; New Hampshire State Senator Kathleen Sgambati; Maxine Quintana, Denver Mayor’s Office for Education and Children; and Pennsylvania State Representative Jake Wheatley.
