New Orleans Afterschool Program Wins National Award From MetLife Foundation

MetLife Foundation and the Afterschool Alliance today honored Kids Rethink New Orleans Schools with an Afterschool Innovator Award. The award recognizes the program's success at providing multiple benefits for middle school students, particularly in the area of providing opportunities for service learning. John Favaloro, a Managing Director from MetLife, presented the award at ArtEgg Studios during a special event that was part of Lights On Afterschool, the only nationwide rally for afterschool programs. Kids Rethink New Orleans Schools also received $10,000 to sustain its work.

"The lessons young people learn in middle school stay with them for a lifetime," said Dennis White, president and CEO of MetLife Foundation. "It is important to take advantage of this unique time in young people's development to provide them with the tools they will need to be successful in high school, college and life. MetLife Foundation is pleased to partner with the Afterschool Alliance to recognize afterschool programs that are doing an outstanding job of teaching life lessons and skills and helping young people achieve their potential."

Kids Rethink New Orleans Schools is one of only five afterschool programs nationwide to be named a 2011 MetLife Foundation Afterschool Innovator. It will be highlighted later this year in an Issue Brief on how afterschool programs benefit middle school students – part of an Afterschool Alliance series that examines critical issues facing youth, schools and communities, and the role that the programs play in addressing these issues. Other award categories and Issue Brief topics this year include: addressing bullying in middle school, supporting literacy for middle school students, and middle school strategies for aligning afterschool with the school day.

Kids Rethink New Orleans Schools includes a Citywide Program with students from 15 public schools who focus on identifying and advancing systemic changes that are needed to make the school system first-rate. Following an intensive six-week summer session, the program continues throughout the academic year with five action committees: oil-free schools/architecture, food justice, garden, restorative justice and digital media. The program is complemented by School-Based Clubs, modeled after the action committees, at six public schools. Working with professionals – such as chefs, artists, media experts and architects – students propose creative solutions to school officials and have convinced them to take steps such as repairing 350 substandard bathrooms, installing hand-washing sinks in new cafeterias and adding garden plots to future school designs.

"The Afterschool Innovator Award is a great recognition of the Rethinkers' hard work and deep commitment to school reform," said Jane Wholey, executive director of Kids Rethink New Orleans Schools. “We’re honored by this show of support from MetLife Foundation and the Afterschool Alliance.”

Organized by the Afterschool Alliance, Lights On Afterschool includes more than 7,500 events being held across the country on and around October 20, providing children, parents, community leaders, educators and others an opportunity to come together to urge Congress not to divert funds away from the afterschool programs that children and families need. Events will also give youth a chance to showcase the skills they learn and talents they develop at their afterschool programs and send the message that millions more kids need quality afterschool programs.

“Afterschool programs are a fundamental way to make sure that learning doesn’t stop when the school day ends,” said Afterschool Alliance Executive Director Jodi Grant. “These programs utilize countless creative ways to help children expand their horizons and get the support they need for educational success. The MetLife Foundation Afterschool Innovator Awards honor programs that stand out in helping kids excel.”
