

Afterschool Ambassador Program: Legacy of Leadership

NEWS RELEASE
November 3, 2015

CONTACT: Luci Manning
202/371-1999

Columbus' Adams Selected as One of Just 15 'Afterschool Ambassadors' from Across Nation

Adams Will Work in Mississippi and Nationally to Make Afterschool Available to More Students

Washington, DC – The Afterschool Alliance today announced that Jannette Adams, Senior Development Officer/Grants Administrator at Mississippi Valley State University, has been selected to serve as a 2015-2016 Afterschool Ambassador. She is one of just 15 leaders from across the country to be chosen for the honor this year. Each Afterschool Ambassador will continue directing or supporting a local afterschool program while also serving the one-year Afterschool Ambassador term, organizing public events, communicating with policy makers, and building support for afterschool programs.

“We are so pleased to have Jannette serving as an Afterschool Ambassador this year,” said Afterschool Alliance Executive Director Jodi Grant. “She will mobilize even more support for quality afterschool and summer learning programs among parents, business and community leaders, lawmakers, educators and others in Itta Bena and Columbus, Mississippi. Quality afterschool programs keep students safe, inspire them to learn and help working families. They offer young people hands-on, team-based learning opportunities, help with homework, science and technology activities, opportunities for sports and fitness, access to healthy snacks and meals, and much more. I look forward to working with Adams this year to bring us closer to the day when every child will have the chance to participate in an afterschool program.”

“I am excited to be part of the Afterschool Alliance’s work to increase resources for afterschool programs, here and across the country,” said Adams. “In my 23 years working with young people, I’ve seen firsthand how afterschool programs give students opportunities to explore their interests and discover their passions, while giving parents the peace of mind that comes with knowing that their children are safe and supervised, with engaging, educational activities, after the school day ends. I look forward to helping raise awareness about the growing need for out-of-school-time opportunities for all children and youth.”

Having worked to develop and implement Project Falcon SOAAR in Columbus, an afterschool STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) academy, Adams is now working with Mississippi Valley State University’s Boys & Girls Club 21st Century Community Learning Centers. This newly funded project is part of a consortium, consisting of MVSU, the Boys & Girls Club and Leflore County Schools, that will serve around 100 students. It will focus on the skills needed to pass the third-grade reading test, recently implemented by the state, and fifth-grade and eighth-grade science tests. Through a blended atmosphere of hands-on learning and computer-based self-paced learning, the program seeks to increase test scores for students whose district is currently in conservatorship. In addition to academic skills, character, career and anti-bullying enrichment activities will increase self-confidence and lead to successful long-term goal setting.

Adams helped organize and promote Lights On Afterschool, the Afterschool Alliance's annual rally for afterschool, events across the state. The Boys & Girls Club in Columbus, Operation Shoestring in Jackson, New Albany Schools, Columbia Schools, and the Columbus Municipal School District held activities on October 22. Governor Phil Bryant issued a Proclamation honoring Lights On Afterschool in Mississippi.

The 2015-2016 Afterschool Ambassadors are:

- Alabama: Dr. Michael Wilson, Principal, Glen Iris Elementary School in Birmingham;
- Colorado: Patrick Wilhelm, Site Coordinator, Scholars Unlimited in Denver;
- Connecticut: Mark Fopeano, Program Manager, Dwight Hall at Yale in New Haven;
- Indiana: Brigitte Gurden, Executive Director, Boys & Girls Club of Morgan County in Mooresville;
- Louisiana: Patricia Johnson, Project Director, 21st Century Community Learning Centers, Monroe City Schools in Monroe;
- Maryland: Kat Stork, Deputy Director, Caroline County Recreation & Parks in Denton;
- Minnesota: Christian Kibler, Program Coordinator, Burnsville Youth Collaborative in Burnsville;
- Mississippi: Jannette Adams, Senior Development Officer/Grants Administrator, Mississippi Valley State University in Itta Bena;
- Missouri: Colleen Abbott, Director, Learning Enriched Afterschool Programs in Eldon;
- New York: Marcel Braithwaite, Director of Center Operations, The Police Athletic League in New York City;
- Oklahoma: Kim Templeman, Principal, Central Oak Elementary in Oklahoma City;
- Tennessee: Kelly Drummond, Vice President of Human Resources and Administration at Boys & Girls Clubs of the Tennessee Valley in Knoxville;
- Virginia: Allyson Graul, Director of Youth Civic Engagement, Alternatives, Inc. in Fort Monroe;
- Washington: Beth Wyant, Program Coordinator, Northwest Community Action Center, a division of Yakima Valley FarmWorkers Clinic in Toppenish; and
- West Virginia: Kasey Carter, Executive Director, Communities In Schools of Greenbrier County in Lewisburg.

A large and growing body of evidence demonstrates improvements in attendance, behavior, academic achievement and more among children in afterschool programs. Researchers have also found that afterschool programs encourage increased parental involvement – an important building block for student success.

The 2014 “America After 3PM” household survey of more than 30,000 families, commissioned by the Afterschool Alliance, found that participation in afterschool programs increased to 10.2 million students nationwide, up from 6.5 million in 2004. But the unmet demand for afterschool programs has increased as well. Today, for every child in an afterschool program, there are two more whose parents say they would participate, if a program were available. One in five students in the United States today is unsupervised after the school day ends.

#

The Afterschool Alliance is a nonprofit public awareness and advocacy organization working to ensure that all children and youth have access to quality afterschool programs. More information is available at www.afterschoolalliance.org.