

Afterschool Ambassador Program: Legacy of Leadership

NEWS RELEASE
September 2, 2015

CONTACT: Luci Manning
202/371-1999

Lower Yakima Valley's Wyant Selected as One of Just 15 'Afterschool Ambassadors' from Across Nation

Wyant Will Work in Washington State and Nationally to Make Afterschool Available to More Students

Washington, DC – The Afterschool Alliance today announced that Beth Wyant, Program Coordinator at Northwest Community Action Center (NCAC), a division of Yakima Valley Farm Workers Clinic, has been selected to serve as a 2015-2016 Afterschool Ambassador. She is one of just 15 leaders from across the country to be chosen for the honor this year. Each Afterschool Ambassador will continue directing or supporting a local afterschool program while also serving the one-year Afterschool Ambassador term, organizing public events, communicating with policy makers, and building support for afterschool programs.

“We are so pleased to have Beth serving as an Afterschool Ambassador this year,” said Afterschool Alliance Executive Director Jodi Grant. “She will mobilize even more support for quality afterschool and summer learning programs among parents, business and community leaders, lawmakers, educators and others in the Lower Yakima Valley. Quality afterschool programs keep students safe, inspire them to learn and help working families. They offer young people hands-on, team-based learning opportunities, help with homework, science and technology activities, opportunities for sports and fitness, access to healthy snacks and meals, and much more. I look forward to working with her this year to bring us closer to the day when every child will have the chance to participate in an afterschool program.”

“I am excited to be part of the Afterschool Alliance’s work to increase resources for afterschool programs, here and across the country,” said Wyant. “In my more than 15 years working with young people, I’ve seen firsthand how afterschool programs give students opportunities to explore their interests and discover their passions, while giving parents the peace of mind that comes with knowing that their children are safe and supervised, with engaging, educational activities, after the school day ends. I look forward to helping raise awareness about the growing need for out-of-school-time opportunities for all children and youth.”

NCAC’s afterschool program, funded by the federal 21st Century Community Learning Center initiative, collaborates with 15 different schools in the Lower Yakima Valley in White Swan, Harrah, Wapato, Toppenish, Zillah, Mabton, Granger, Outlook, Sunnyside and Grandview. These afterschool programs serve more than 1,350 elementary, middle, and high school students each day. Each day afterschool students are actively engaged in hands-on learning activities to help students meet Washington’s College & Career Readiness Standards in reading and STEM (science, technology, engineering and math). Students also participate in physical fitness activities aimed at addressing childhood obesity; enhanced youth development opportunities such as robotics and hands on experience at the Wildlife Refuge. Our programs also offer adult education to the parents of our afterschool students, including first aid/CPR and computer literacy.

Each Ambassador will organize a major event for Lights On Afterschool, the Afterschool Alliance's annual rally for afterschool, to be held on October 22 this year. Last year, 1 million people participated in some 8,000 Lights On Afterschool events across the United States and at U.S. military bases worldwide.

The 2015-2016 Afterschool Ambassadors are:

- Alabama: Dr. Michael Wilson, Principal, Glen Iris Elementary School in Birmingham;
- Colorado: Patrick Wilhelm, Site Coordinator, Scholars Unlimited in Denver;
- Connecticut: Mark Fopeano, Program Manager, Dwight Hall at Yale in New Haven;
- Indiana: Brigitte Gurden, Executive Director, Boys & Girls Club of Morgan County in Mooresville;
- Louisiana: Patricia Johnson, Project Director, 21st Century Community Learning Centers, Monroe City Schools in Monroe;
- Maryland: Kat Stork, Deputy Director, Caroline County Recreation & Parks in Denton;
- Minnesota: Christian Kibler, Program Coordinator, Burnsville Youth Collaborative in Burnsville;
- Mississippi: Jannette Adams, Project Director, 21st Century Afterschool Academy, Columbus Municipal School District in Columbus;
- Missouri: Colleen Abbott, Director, Learning Enriched Afterschool Programs in Eldon;
- New York: Marcel Braithwaite, Director of Center Operations, The Police Athletic League in New York City;
- Oklahoma: Kim Templeman, Principal, Central Oak Elementary in Oklahoma City;
- Tennessee: Kelly Drummond, Vice President of Human Resources and Administration at Boys & Girls Clubs of the Tennessee Valley in Knoxville;
- Virginia: Allyson Graul, Director of Youth Civic Engagement, Alternatives, Inc. in Fort Monroe;
- Washington: Beth Wyant, Program Coordinator, Northwest Community Action Center, a division of Yakima Valley FarmWorkers Clinic in Toppenish; and
- West Virginia: Kasey Carter, Executive Director, Communities In Schools of Greenbrier County in Lewisburg.

A large and growing body of evidence demonstrates improvements in attendance, behavior, academic achievement and more among children in afterschool programs. Researchers have also found that afterschool programs encourage increased parental involvement – an important building block for student success.

The 2014 “America After 3PM” household survey of more than 30,000 families, commissioned by the Afterschool Alliance, found that participation in afterschool programs increased to 10.2 million students nationwide, up from 6.5 million in 2004. But the unmet demand for afterschool programs has increased as well. Today, for every child in an afterschool program, there are two more whose parents say they would participate, if a program were available. One in five students in the United States today is unsupervised after the school day ends.

###

The Afterschool Alliance is a nonprofit public awareness and advocacy organization working to ensure that all children and youth have access to quality afterschool programs. More information is available at www.afterschoolalliance.org.

NCAC is a Community Action Center that is part of a larger healthcare organization, Yakima Valley Farm Workers Clinic. There are three divisions that make up NCAC; Emergency Services, Education Services, and Employment & Training. NCAC has provided expanded learning opportunities in the Lower Yakima Valley since 2001. NCAC's mission is to create measurable change that will empower at-risk and economically disadvantaged individuals and families to achieve a greater level of self-sufficiency by engaging the local communities and business through advocacy and coordination of economic, educational, social, employment, and human resources.