Orlando's Ragoonanan Selected as One of Just 15 'Afterschool Ambassadors' in Country This Year

Sierra Ragoonanan Will Work in Florida, Nationally to Increase Students' Access to Afterschool

Washington, DC – The Afterschool Alliance announced today that Sierra Ragoonana, Project Coordinator at the City of Orlando After-School All-Stars, has been selected to serve as a 2017-2018 Afterschool Ambassador. She is one of just 15 leaders from across the nation chosen for the honor this year. Each Afterschool Ambassador will continue directing or supporting a local afterschool program while also serving a one-year Afterschool Ambassador term, organizing public events, communicating with policy makers and in other ways increasing support for afterschool and summer learning programs.

“We’re delighted that Sierra will serve as an Afterschool Ambassador this year,” said Afterschool Alliance Executive Director Jodi Grant. “She is exactly the kind of powerful champion we need at this time when federal funding for quality afterschool and summer learning programs is at risk. I know she will mobilize business, community and faith leaders, parents, educators and others to convince lawmakers to secure resources for the afterschool programs that keep kids safe, inspire them to learn and help working families. These programs offer hands-on learning opportunities, homework help, mentors, science and technology, healthy snacks and meals, sports and fitness, arts programming, college and job prep, and much more. We’re facing very real challenges this year, and more than a million students across the country could lose their afterschool programs. We will work together to stave off that threat.”

“I am thrilled to join in the Afterschool Alliance’s work to build support for afterschool programs,” said Ragoonanan. “In my five years working in the field, I’ve seen up close the many ways afterschool programs help students to explore their interests and discover their passions, while giving parents the peace of mind that comes with knowing their children are safe and supervised, with opportunities to learn and grow, after the school day ends. I look forward to raising awareness and support for the out-of-school-time opportunities all students need.”

After-School All-Stars is a national organization with 17 chapters that provide comprehensive youth development programs striving to keep children safe and help them achieve in school and life. Since, 1995, Orlando After-School All-Stars (ASAS), in partnership with the City of Orlando and Orange County Public Schools, has been the community leader in providing comprehensive youth development programs to the areas middle and high school youth. ASAS's city wide programs serve more than 3,600 youth by providing daily academic, enrichment, athletic and service learning activities. Federal funding through 21st Century Community

Learning Centers aids in meeting a critical need in the Orlando community as it provides the base programming for over 2,100 students in our community. ASAS strives to "level the playing field" for youth and bridge the achievement gap to success

Each Ambassador will organize a major event for Lights On Afterschool, the Afterschool Alliance's annual rally for afterschool, to be held on October 26 this year. Last year, 1 million people participated in some 7,500 Lights On Afterschool events across the United States and at U.S. military bases worldwide.

The America After 3PM household survey of more than 30,000 families, commissioned by the Afterschool Alliance, found that participation in afterschool programs has increased to 10.2 million students nationwide, up from 6.5 million in 2004. But the unmet demand for afterschool programs has increased as well. Today, for every child in an afterschool program, there are two more whose parents say they would participate, if a program were available. Unmet demand is especially high in rural communities and communities of concentrated poverty. One in five students in the United States today is unsupervised after the school day ends.

A large and growing body of evidence demonstrates improvements in attendance, behavior, academic achievement and more among children in afterschool programs. Researchers have also found that afterschool programs encourage increased parental involvement – an important building block for student success.
