Northwest Arkansas's Ben Rediske Selected as One of Just 15 'Afterschool Ambassadors' in Country This Year

Ben Rediske Will Work in Arkansas, Nationally to Increase Students' Access to Afterschool

Washington, DC – The Afterschool Alliance announced today that Ben Rediske, Director at the SOAR After School Program with Camp War Eagle, has been selected to serve as a 2017-2018 Afterschool Ambassador. He is one of just 15 leaders from across the nation chosen for the honor this year. Each Afterschool Ambassador will continue directing or supporting a local afterschool program while also serving a one-year Afterschool Ambassador term, organizing public events, communicating with policy makers and in other ways increasing support for afterschool and summer learning programs.

“We’re delighted that Ben will serve as an Afterschool Ambassador this year,” said Afterschool Alliance Executive Director Jodi Grant. “He is exactly the kind of powerful champion we need at this time when federal funding for quality afterschool and summer learning programs is at risk. I know he will mobilize business, community and faith leaders, parents, educators and others to convince lawmakers to secure resources for the afterschool programs that keep kids safe, inspire them to learn and help working families. These programs offer hands-on learning opportunities, homework help, mentors, science and technology, healthy snacks and meals, sports and fitness, arts programming, college and job prep, and much more. We’re facing very real challenges this year, and more than a million students across the country could lose their afterschool programs. We will work together to stave off that threat.”

“I am thrilled to join in the Afterschool Alliance’s work to build support for afterschool programs,” said Rediske. “In my five years working in the field, I’ve seen up close the many ways afterschool programs help students to explore their interests and discover their passions, while giving parents the peace of mind that comes with knowing their children are safe and supervised, with opportunities to learn and grow, after the school day ends. I look forward to raising awareness and support for the out-of-school-time opportunities all students need.”

SOAR, the Camp War Eagle After School Program, serves over 350 students in the Springdale & Rogers school districts. Our partner schools in Springdale are Jones Elementary & Parson Hills Elementary; in Rogers, Grace Hill Elementary. Each SOAR site is a recipient of a 21st Century Community Learning Center grant from the Department of Education. At SOAR, we believe we are much more than just an afterschool program, we believe that we are a place that gives each SOAR student a safe, fun place to dream, grow, and learn. We offer students opportunities to participate in a wide variety of activities such as: gardening, cooking, athletics, wood working, photography, leadership development, student entrepreneurship, homework, art, dance, theatre, nature, world exploration, and much more. We desire for our students to dream outside the confines of their school and neighborhood, therefore, we value community partnerships (local and national) to help us expose our students to different experiences outside of what they typically experience.

Each Ambassador will organize a major event for Lights On Afterschool, the Afterschool Alliance's annual rally for afterschool, to be held on October 26 this year. Last year, 1 million people participated in some 7,500 Lights On Afterschool events across the United States and at U.S. military bases worldwide.

The America After 3PM household survey of more than 30,000 families, commissioned by the Afterschool Alliance, found that participation in afterschool programs has increased to 10.2 million students nationwide, up from 6.5 million in 2004. But the unmet demand for afterschool programs has increased as well. Today, for every child in an afterschool program, there are two more whose parents say they would participate, if a program were available. Unmet demand is especially high in rural communities and communities of concentrated poverty. One in five students in the United States today is unsupervised after the school day ends.

A large and growing body of evidence demonstrates improvements in attendance, behavior, academic achievement and more among children in afterschool programs. Researchers have also found that afterschool programs encourage increased parental involvement – an important building block for student success.
