Aaron Frumin of New Orleans Selected as One of Just 14 Afterschool Ambassadors in United States This Year

Aaron Frumin Will Work in Louisiana and Across Nation to Make Afterschool and Summer Learning Programs Available to More Students and Families

Washington, DC – The Afterschool Alliance announced today that it has selected Aaron Frumin, Executive Director at unCommon Construction, to serve as a 2024 Afterschool Ambassador. He is one of just 14 leaders in the country chosen for the honor this year. Afterschool Ambassadors continue working with local afterschool programs while serving a one-year Afterschool Ambassador term, working with community leaders and policy makers, organizing events, and in other ways growing support for the afterschool and summer learning programs families rely on.

“We are thrilled that Aaron Frumin is serving as a 2024 Afterschool Ambassador for the Afterschool Alliance,” said Jodi Grant, Afterschool Alliance executive director. “This is a challenging time for the country’s students and families, and afterschool and summer learning programs are uniquely positioned to help. But there aren’t nearly enough programs to meet the need, and programs are facing significant challenges including funding shortfalls as the pandemic relief tapers off, staff shortages, and more. Now more than ever, we need leaders to spread the word that afterschool programs keep kids safe, inspire them to learn, and give parents peace of mind that their children are safe and supervised after the school day ends. Aaron is exactly the kind of champion we need.”

“I am delighted to have the chance to work with the Afterschool Alliance to increase awareness and support for afterschool and summer learning programs this year,” said Frumin. “Throughout my youth, many of the most meaningful experiences that informed my personal development happened through afterschool programs. I’m proud of the way unCommon Construction activates afterschool time for youth in our community, giving them opportunities to earn and learn through a work-based learning experience that connects them with future opportunities. That’s especially important now. Many of our students have ground to make up and afterschool programs can help them do that. I’m so proud to be part of the afterschool movement and to be a 2024 Afterschool Ambassador.”

Through unCommon’s apprenticeship program, students from different high schools apply to join a diverse team that earns hourly pay and school credit for building a house or another project together. With the revenue from each project, unCommon matches apprentices’ earnings with an Equity Award scholarship for further education and career opportunities. Through afterschool and weekend sessions, unCommon apprentices gain on-the-job technical training in an environment that emphasizes the development and demonstration of more universally applicable and transferrable skills for success in work and life.

Each Ambassador will organize a major event for Lights On Afterschool, the Afterschool Alliance's annual rally for afterschool. Most of the thousands of local Lights On Afterschool events will be on or around Thursday, October 24, 2024.

Some 24.7 million U.S. children not in an afterschool program would be enrolled, if a program were available to them, according to a survey of nearly 1,500 parents commissioned by the Afterschool Alliance and conducted by Edge Research in May and June of 2022. That is the highest number ever recorded. Unmet demand for afterschool programs is significantly higher among Latino and Black children (at 60% and 54% respectively) than among children overall (49%). Cost is the top barrier to enroll, cited by 57% of parents as a reason for not enrolling their child. Ninety percent of parents rate the quality of the program their child attends as excellent (51%) or very good (39%).

A large and powerful body of evidence demonstrates improvements in grades, school attendance, behavior and more among children who participate in afterschool programs. Researchers have also found that students in afterschool programs are more engaged in school and excited about learning and develop critical work and life skills such as problem solving, teamwork, and communications.
